

Guest Commentaries

The Citizen-Times welcomes guest commentaries on local, regional, national and international issues. We recommend a length of 500 to 700 words, but may allow them to go longer at the editor's discretion. We are looking for good writing, original thinking, unique perspective and/or well argued points.

We request a photograph of the writer and a sentence or short paragraph at the end to identify the writer for our readers. That should include the town or community where the writer lives as well as any special familiarity or credentials the writer has to address the issue at hand. We request that people identify their affiliations with relevant advocacy organizations, any work-related or ownership connections or any special expertise related to the issue.
